1. Recommended Slide Structure

Section	Suggested Slides	Key Content
Title Slide	1	Title, presenter and co-author names, affiliation(s), and APTICON 2026 presentation details.
Introduction	2 slides	Background/rationale, research gap, objective or hypothesis.
Materials & Methods	2 slides	Study design/workflow; key materials, methods, analytical/statistical approaches. Prefer flowcharts/schematics.
Results & Discussion	Up to 3 slides	Present key findings using graphs, figures and concise tables; highlight important/significant results and briefly interpret them.
Conclusion	1 slide	Major findings, scientific significance, applications and/or future scope.
References	1 slide	Only the most relevant references cited in the presentation, in a consistent style.

2. Slide Design & Formatting

- Use a clean, professional, scientifically appropriate design with consistent fonts, formatting, terminology and units.
- Use large, readable fonts and high-contrast text. Avoid dense paragraphs and overcrowded slides.
- Prefer graphs, figures, flowcharts, schematics and representative images over lengthy text.
- Keep tables concise and readable; label all figures/tables clearly and indicate statistical significance where applicable.
- Use high-resolution visuals and avoid unnecessary animations, decorative graphics or excessive transitions.

3. Presentation & Time Management

- Maintain a clear scientific flow: Problem/Gap → Objective → Methodology → Results → Conclusion.
- Focus only on the most important findings and avoid reading directly from the slides.
- Rehearse beforehand to ensure completion within the strict 5-minute presentation limit.
- The presentation will be followed by a 2-minute Question & Answer session; answer questions briefly and scientifically.

IMPORTANT: Recommended 5–7 slides; ABSOLUTE MAXIMUM = 10 slides, including title and references.
The 5-minute presentation time will be strictly followed.
